PREFACE

D.S. 8411

Price Earnings Ratio (P / E Ratio) is one of the most powerful tools available in assessing the price of a share vis-a-vis the earnings' capacity of the company. The ratio shows as to how many times the current price is as compared to the earnings per share.

The market price of an equity share represents a valuation of the future based on the earnings available per share and the risk factors involved in the business and the industry in which the company is engaged. The relationship of the price of the share to the earnings per share is therefore valuable in assessing the current level of prices and to determine whether the shares are under-priced or over-priced. The market price of a share is influenced by many factors such as the dividends and earnings' record; stability and the rate of growth of past earnings and sales; credit rating and financial strength; kind of management and competitive position of the company in the industry and its future prospects. A high P / E ratio reflects a high rate of growth and investor confidence. The shares of a well-established company usually sells at a higher multiple of current earnings.

The fortnightly issue of the Daily Official List of the Exchange gives the P / E ratios of individual companies based on the fortnightly closing prices.

The Stock Exchange, Mumbai, in its continuing endeavor to make available as much information as possible on the stock market to the investing community and the stock brokers, launched the BSE Sensitive Index in January 1986, BSE National Index in January 1989, BSE-200 & Dollex in May 1994. Effective October 14, 1986, the BSE National Index was christened as BSE-100 Index and prices received on the BSE are taken to calculate the index. All these have been well received and they are updated at a minute interval and displayed through the BOLT and the PTI Stockscan Service. The exchange has launched three sets of P / E ratios - one for the 30 scrips comprising the BSE Sensitive Index, the other for the 100 scrips comprising the BSE-100 Index and third for the 200 scrips comprising the BSE-200 Index. These ratios are displayed through the PTI Stockscan Service and published in the Daily Official List.

The P / E ratio for a group of companies is computed as the ratio of the overall market capitalization (based on current prices) of the companies to the overall earnings of these companies. The Exchange has adopted the universal practice of excluding loss making companies from the purview of this calculation.

The P / E ratios for the 30 companies comprising the BSE Sensitive Index and for the 100 companies comprising the BSE National Index for the trading days commencing 1st January, 1989 till date are given in the following pages.
